We Are Oak Park

Oak Park High School opened in 1965, and it was cooler than all the other high schools in the Kansas City area in at least one category: It had air conditioning! As the second high school in NKC Schools, Oak Park is now in its sixth decade of service to Northland students, parents and patrons.

The school was designed to allow in a significant amount of natural light and included several courtyards within the school. Oak Park received an architectural award for its progressive design. The school also was an innovator academically, becoming one of the first schools to implement computer and business classes. The progressive and innovative nature of Oak Park continues today as students thrive in programs focused on science and technology.

Oak Park is “Blue on Blue Through and Through” with school colors of Navy and Columbia Blue. The mascot has remained the Northmen since opening and students have continued to refer to themselves as “Oakies.” The colors and mascot were chosen by the original Oak Park students, with the help of Dr. Dan Kahler who served as the principal from 1965-1986.

Since opening, Oak Park has focused on doing what is best for students, and nearly 30,000 graduates have benefitted from first-rate experiences in academics, music, theater and sports. Now surrounded by well-established neighborhoods, a vibrant commercial corridor and a city park, Oak Park High School remains a proud Northland tradition.
