In August, the Clay County Health Department published initial gating criteria to aid schools in their decision-making. Last week, the CDC released school gating criteria. As a result, Clay County is in the process of recalibrating and updating their original guidance, hoping to publish it as early as this afternoon. To ensure NKC Schools is in alignment with our local health department, we will establish a work group early next week to revise our original decision-making matrix. While the dashboard with district and local data will continue to be updated each Friday, new decision-making criteria will be released as soon as possible.
